Public Interest in the Military Affairs of Europe

Has Been Obliterated by Prohibition Fight in England.

PETITIONS ARE POURING IN

Asking the Government to Stop Traffic in Liquor.

Cabinet Has Power to Act in Arbitrary Manner.

London, April 2 .- The attention of the British public is today concentrated on the question of abstinence. For the moment it has overshadowed the war. This is Good Friday, and in London there are no afternoon papers but it is doubtful if the biggest headbut it is doubtful if the biggest head-lines chronicling military activity could divert the attention of the peo-ple from the all-absorbing topic of the possibility of a "dry" country.

That some drastic measures are contemplated is beyond question, but the public is divided in opinion as to whether the prohibition is to be total, whether the consumption of alco-lic liquors will be permitted under sharp control.

Several of the London morning papers appeared today with full page advertisements, presenting petitions, with the request that supporters of the movement cut them out and send them to Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George. These petitions read: "I am entirely in favor of the suspension of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors during the war, which I consider imperative for a quick and successful termination of the war. I shall heartily support the government in any such measure."

The petition idea is backed by merchants and business men and other employers of labor, who disclaim any save a war interest in the proposed

The sense of personal liberty is so strong in England that it may defeat total prohibition. But the sense of fair play fights on the side of the extreme measure for the opinion is growing that if employees be deprived of their right to drink, employers must take their place in the same boat. It is believed that the cabinet is in favor of total prohibition which, under the defense of the realm act, it has the power to enforce without any further legislation.

Which of the two candidates for mayor, House or Blakely, will receive at the general city election Tuesday the major portion of the votes which the primary election went to Hughes and Lannan? Upon the manner in which this vote divides to a very large extent rests defeat or vic-

Of course there are the voters who were registered and who are entitled to vote at the coming election, but did not vote at the primary, to be considered. According to the registration books there were 5,646 such persons -enough to very easily swing the scales either way-should they get out and vote. But judging Tuesday's election by past elections it is not likely that a very considerable number of these stay-at-homes will vote. Practically 70 per centum of the registered vote was cast at the primary. There have been very few elections in Topeka in which a greater per centum of the qualified voters availed them-selves of the privilege.

While primary elections are not of as much general interest as the final contest, the fact that there are more candidates in the field usually brings out as large a vote as at the following election. So again it seems that the question of whether House or Blakely will be elected Tuesday depends upon the voters who voted at the primary—not those who stayed at home.

Few persons who vote for the successful candidate at the primaries switch to another candidate at the final election.
